

On Friday, an auction of lost property, at Malpensa Airport

Pubblicato: Martedì 17 Novembre 2015

A surprise auction; many have been waiting for it, and this year too, it has finally come. The auction of objects lost in Malpensa Airport will take place in the airport's Terminal 2, on Friday 20 November at 9.30 a.m., in the Hall of the NoiSEA Association (CRAL).

The items in the auction can be inspected, tomorrow, 18 November, and on Thursday 19 November, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

How does the auction work? Let's go through it again.

You should come early on the day of the auction, with a lot of patience. There are 148 lots, and they include items of every kind: clothes, jackets, suits, cameras, mobile phones, iPads, computers of various makes and models, watches, pens, and a complete "set" of items for children.

This year, three acoustic guitars made of wood, complete with case, are also up for auction, and, among the more curious items, of which there is no shortage, two used, glass and metal hookahs, with related material and accessories for their use.

Payments of sums less than €1000 can be made in cash; in all other cases, payments must be made by cheque. The goods will be delivered once the cheque has gone through.

In the case of cash payments, the goods can be collected immediately after the payment.

One piece of advice: the auction is always very crowded, so get there in good time.
